Memoranda, — for

Mrs. Livermore,

Of matter collected for the "Memoirs" of

Harriet Martineau, — not included for want of room.

1. Names of her works — one hundred volumes.
2. Copy of her Will, as far as concerns the public.
3. Picture of her family & house, & the Octagon Church at Norwich.
4. Estimate of her, by reviews. (see scrap book)
5. Misrepresentations to be incidentally corrected, — without controversy or contradiction. N.B. the Anonymous assertion in Daily advertiser, that her articles were rejected by D. K. on last great numbers. [to show Mrs. L. The Bookkeepers accts.
6. To run through the Memoir in the Library Secretary, for anecdotes & Statements of more or less pigquancy.
7. Attitude of the Unitarian clergy at the time of her Play in America. Note — As Lockhart was in Europe — (not the Rose, but the haunter of Rose-Gardens,) while H.M. was reading this "Wine Press of the Wrath of God" alone in America,

7. Attitude of the Politicians: — Unity of North & South in Slaveholding forming the back ground that shows the heroic Grandeur & Self-devotion of her Character: — Power Mastered by temptations resisted & obstacles overcome.

8. Opinion of her friend Dr. Channing: "Light"

9. Opposition Reviewers — "Quarterly" & "Prospective"

10. Intimate changing as time goes on, & When distance has in part, wrought the effect of time, the character rises grand & colossal — the great Figure of the Woman-hood of the 19th century. Such are not even perceived in all their grandeur in their own day. We must not set down all the ~~discreditable~~ low lack of reviews to the disgrace of those who write them. They are written by political & religious rivals, it is true. & full of hates malice & all uncharitableness, intents & generated by the present time: — Still ~~there~~ something is to
